Economic and Social Factors and Their Relationship to The Practices of about Care for Leather Clothing Some University Students in Alexandria

Sonia Mohamed Shipoon

Department of Home Economic - Faculty of Agriculture - Alexandria University

ABSTRACT

Leather clothing is scattered among a large number of people, it is also worn for many months of the year, due to resistant to weathering different, it's also versatile, and is a good addition to any wardrobe, so the proper care for Leather Clothing can prolong its life time of specially the high-quality one and throw the good practices to take care of them have a significant impact on the life time of it and therefore represented the research problem in knowledge and practices in the total care of leather clothes in terms of washing, drying, storage, use and practices of resistance to fungal growth and repair deterioration and cutting and scratching her and their relationship to economic and social factors for individuals users to those types of clothing.

This research sample was represented in the Alexandria University students and the results revealed the following:

More than three-quarters (83.3%: 86.3%)of the studied samples have awareness of medium Laundry Leather, store leather garments and full attention, and also for dried, use, and methods of prevention and elimination of fungal growth out and fix it and it seems that a quarter (9.4%: 25.6%) of samples study have a high awareness of leather care.

A study of the relationship of statistical variables independent research and subsidiaries using a simple correlation shows that there is correlation significant at the level of probability (0.05) among all the independent variables represented in the age of the father and the average monthly income of each of the prevention of injury, fungal and use of leather garments and total care by variables subsidiaries.

As it turned out well and according to Kai square and there is a direct correlation probability at the level of (0.01) between marital status and all of the storage and use of clothing and ways to get rid of the fungi.
